1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 AIIMS, Rishikesh

The All India Institute of Medical Sciences (AIIMS) Rishikesh was established in 2012 under the Pradhan Mantri Swasthya Suraksha Yojana (PMSSY) to address regional disparities in quality tertiary healthcare and medical education. As an autonomous institution of national importance, AIIMS Rishikesh upholds the same academic and research excellence as its parent institute, AIIMS New Delhi. The institute offers undergraduate, postgraduate, and doctoral programs in medicine and allied sciences, granting degrees recognized under the AIIMS Act. With state-of-the-art infrastructure, multidisciplinary research opportunities, and a strong focus on patient-centered care, AIIMS Rishikesh plays a pivotal role in strengthening India's healthcare system, particularly in the northern region.

1.2 MPH Program at AIIMS, Rishikesh

Public health education has been viewed as a vital means of addressing a wide range of public health challenges for many years. Yet, the current capacity and output in India's public health sector remain insufficient to meet these demands. Strengthening the training of healthcare professionals is crucial to building and sustaining a robust cadre of public health experts.

In this context, the School of Public Health (SPH), AIIMS Rishikesh stands at the forefront of addressing these needs and plays a leading role in meeting these critical needs. Currently SPH is a unit of Department of Community Medicine, AIIMS, Rishikesh.

The institution is dedicated to achieving excellence in public health education, fostering cutting-edge research, promoting fellowship and training, and delivering the highest standard of care to the community. Its Master of Public Health (MPH) program is distinguished by a multidisciplinary curriculum, which integrates biomedical sciences, epidemiology, health management, policy analysis, and environmental health. Through this broad-based approach, the program prepares professionals to tackle a spectrum of public health problems and assume pivotal leadership roles in diverse settings, from rural outreach to national and international health agencies.

The MPH program is thoughtfully designed to nurture outstanding public health professionals who are adept at applying evidence-based practices and the latest research to enhance population health outcomes. At SPH, AIIMS Rishikesh, students hail from various academic disciplines—medicine, Dental and AYUSH of professional backgrounds, enriching the learning environment. The program employs innovative teaching methodologies, including collaborative problem-solving workshops, field-based learning through observerships in leading public health organizations, and real-world case studies. These interactive and experiential learning strategies not only deepen theoretical understanding, but also empower students with the practical skills and confidence necessary to address complex health challenges and to drive meaningful change in the health sector.

2. AIM AND OBJECTIVES

AIM

The aim of the MPH program is to develop public health professionals who are capable of designing, implementing, evaluating, and advancing affordable public health technologies and strategies, grounded in globally recognized evidence, to help achieve the vision of Universal Health Coverage.

OBJECTIVES

The MPH program, with a particular emphasis on Public Health Practice, aims to achieve the following objectives:

- Equip students with a comprehensive understanding of public health principles, research methodologies, and health management practices.
- Foster the development of leadership and managerial capabilities, as well as a strong research orientation throughout the program.
- Enable students to grasp and implement the One Health approach within the field of public health.
- Prepare graduates to apply their public health knowledge effectively and communicate essential information to relevant stakeholders.
